

Description of AV collaborative project by xx+xy visuals with IQBIT

RABBI

Experimental video project based on sound by IQBIT. The name of the work is directly inspired by the name of the sound piece from IQBIT EP Liminal '08. This work is based on single black and white image that was chosen among variety of images commonly used as desktop picture and typically representing beautiful landscapes displayed on our desktop computers. This image is not representing any more urban landscape with one bridge heading to some-where but is reconstructed into abstract and unique audiovisual language presenting itself into rhythmic AV synch where the transfigurations is inspired and also controlled thorough the digital animation process. This digital process of transfiguration of the image into abstract and computer based work that use sound as source material, gives us the possibility to re-construct animations and imagery through controlled rhythmic audio synch and effects of the software. The Rabbi sound and imagery are synchronized asserting a form of glitch minimalism re-assembled into rhythmic audio-visual landscape.

IQBIT – audio

My music is constantly morphing and shifting into new directions. Breaks are filled with thought-provoking impulses extracted by an effected gadgetry. My style conjugates a research on experimental sounds with a production of more enjoyable grooves and melodies.
